DISTRICT WILL NOT LAY MAINS TO WHITE HOUSE

Without Authority to Furnish Exclusive Water Supply,
Say Commissioners.

Additional water mains will not be laid in the White House grounds by the District of Columbia water department, the Commissioners of the District having decided that they are without authority to make the improvement which was requested recently by Col. Spencer Cosby, superintendent of public buildings and grounds.

Following the washing of the White House October 24, by engine company No. 1 of the District fire department, Capt. Thomas O'Connor of the company reported to the Commissioners that the hydrants on the grounds of the Executive Mansion were in such poor condition that it would be impossible to get a working fire stream in case of fire.

Taken Up With Cosby.
The District heads immediately brought the matter to the attention of Col. Cosby. This official, replying under date of November 9, stated that the mechanical parts of the hydrants had been repaired, but suggested that separate mains, leading to the hydrants, should be installed for fire service exclusively. Col. Cosby believed that he believed this to be an expense properly chargeable to the water department of the District.

Reason for Refusal.
The Commissioners call attention to the fact that for a number of years they have advanced the matter of the Washington aqueduct to them so that there might be a unity of control over the entire water supply and distribution system of the District, but state that until such transfer is made or other legislation enacted governing the matter they cannot install the mains in question at the expense of the water department.

ASSAULTS PORK BARREL METHOD OF BUILDING

Representative Cline Criticizes
Present System of Scattering
Federal Structures.

"The entire system of providing for public buildings in the United States is wrong," Representative Cyrus Cline of Indiana, chairman of the committee which is investigating expenditures in public buildings and grounds, believes that something is radically wrong with the method adopted by the Treasury Department in planning public buildings and also in the "pork barrel" system of scattering expensive buildings all over the United States.

"Nearly one hundred and fifty of the buildings appropriated for two years are still unplanned," said Mr. Cline, "and it will be years before the buildings to be appropriated for in the public buildings bill at this session will be erected. Some of the buildings fought for by representatives now in Congress will not be started until after the men who asked for them have retired from public life."

Lawmakers Get in Bad.
"The fact that representatives now clamor for a United States government building for their town or district and are shelved by their constituents if Congress fails to appropriate for them is the representative in a false position. There should not be any such system."

"The expenses of maintaining the public buildings to be appropriated for this year run into millions. Just think where that expense will climb to in a dozen years if we keep on spending millions and millions on public buildings in every little town in the country. There is many a town where a small rent for office rooms would get adequate accommodations for the use of the United States in that particular section."

The legislation required for such a change may be drafted at this session, but there is doubt as to its passage in the House.

GRAND JURY WITNESSES INDICTED FOR PERJURY

Report Made on Investigation in Ohio of Charges of Election Corruption.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, December 5.—The grand jury which has been investigating charges of election corruption in Jefferson county today made its report. There are eight secret indictments charging perjury against witnesses before the grand jury.

Thirty-five witnesses have been examined by the grand jury. It is said that a number of other than those indicted today, since testifying, have approached Prosecutor Paisley and Assistant Attorney General McGhee, who are conducting the investigation, and have pleaded to be allowed to go before the grand jury again and set their former testimony right.

Investigators Have 600 Names.
Six hundred names of persons who probably will be called to testify are now in the hands of the investigators.

One man who was given a shotgun for his vote and, becoming conscience stricken, subsequently threw the gun into the Ohio river has been summoned. It is said that the candidate who made the gift, alarmed by the investigation, tried to recover it, but of course in vain.

It is expected the investigation will require four or five weeks more.

ADmits TWO CHARGES.

William Jones Denies Other Three Counts of Larceny, However.

William Jones, colored, who was indicted yesterday on five charges of house-breaking and larceny from apartments, was arraigned today before Justice Stafford in Criminal Court No. 1.

Jones pleaded guilty to two charges, but denied that he had entered the three other apartments which were visited by a thief. He was remanded for trial on the other charges. He is represented by Attorney B. D. Truitt.
